The Upton Police Department is committed to providing resources and assistance to our residents suffering from opioid addiction. Our police officers have been trained to connect those affected by this epidemic with therapists and counselors that can help navigate the road to recovery. In addition to providing referrals, Upton Police Officers carry Narcan, a medication used to block the effects of opioids. If you are present during a drug overdose, we ask that you call 911 so that first responders can provide lifesaving medical aid. Under MGL Chapter 94C, Section 341, known as the "Good Samaritan Law", a person who, in good faith, seeks medical assistance for someone experiencing a drug-related overdose shall not be charged or prosecuted for possession of a controlled substance. We believe education and prevention are essential in the battle of substance abuse. Upton Police Officers are actively engaged in partnerships with our public schools and community groups to provide education on the dangers of substance abuse. Oftentimes opioid addiction begins with abuse of prescription medications; an important step for families to consider is to remove old medications from your home to prevent unauthorized access. The Upton Police Department provides a "MedReturn" kiosk in the lobby of Police Headquarters where you can safely dispose medications before they get into the wrong hands.
