REPORT OF SUPERINTENDENT OF SCHOOLS.

TO THE SCHOOL COMMITTEE OF UPTON, MASS.

GENTLEMEN:—

Herewith I present my first report as superintendent of your schools, the twenty second in the series since the formation of the union with Grafton.

Your committee, carrying out the suggestions embodied in the report of last year, have ceiled and painted the hallway in the Centre School and have put an electric pump in the High School building. Not only has this caused an improvement in appearance of the Centre building but it has also rendered the High School property more valuable. For the coming year there seems to be no need of any extensive repairs. The method of heating the Centre building is far from satisfactory but can be used and any fund that would naturally be applied to remedying the conditions existing should rather be conserved until a new building is constructed in that part of the town. Not only is the ventilation poor in this building but the distribution of light is such that on many days it is impossible for the children to give close attention to their books. Tests of the eyes of the pupils were made during the fall term. In the High School building ten per cent were found to have defective sight, in the Knowlton eight and two-thirds per cent and in the Centre sixteen per cent. This is conclusive evidence of the effect of improper lighting upon the vision of children.

However much a child may grow intellectually in school it is all of little avail if during such period he does not become more robust and better able to withstand the attacks of disease. With this thought in mind a circular was sent to the various teachers requesting that they keep a temperature chart in the room showing the state of the thermometer at different hours in the day. The result has been that there has been a more even temperature maintained and that the air has become less vitiated. Following the plan first used in Chicago, three minutes of each hour has been given to physical exercise with the windows open or even in the case of the lower grades in the school yard. Any one seeing the earnestness with which the pupils take up their work after the brief respite would be well convinced of the value of the relaxation.

At recesses it is expected that not only all pupils but also the teachers should be out of the building. Certainly if any need the open air it is the latter. Necessarily this has resulted in doing away with "keeping in at recess" as a punishment. If any pupil ever should be detained during an intermission it is certainly not the disobedient one since in the majority of cases his offense is due largely to superabundance of energy which can best be worked off on the playground. The teachers as a whole have welcomed the recommendation and have gone on the playground and joined in the play of the pupils. This is as it should be since at those periods the pupil is unconscious of observation and the teacher has his best opportunity of judging the true character of the boy or girl. During the spring term it is planned to do some work in folk dancing in the upper grades.

The work in the schools has been carried on with little change from last year though the three R's have been emphasized as the basis of all thorough preparation for life. In reading, the New Progressive method was introduced in the spring. This system appeals to the story instinct of the child and hence tends to better understanding on his part of what he is reading. The results appear to be satisfactory but will show themselves more after the second year's work. Following out the plan of last year, a complete revision of the course in arithmetic has been placed in the hands of the teachers. This course is founded on the idea that in the lower grades the pupils should become so proficient in the strictly numerical processes that in the upper they might give all their time and attention to the solution of the problem at hand. As far as possible only that material is given which the child can use in his business life. The course follows the general lines of that sent out by the state board of education. Courses have also been provided by this board in the other subjects commonly taught, with the idea that there should be such general uniformity throughout the commonwealth that pupils going from one town to another would not lose time nor progress by so doing. Other subjects will have local outlines prepared as the opportunity presents itself.

Great progress has been made in the writing. Teachers' meetings have been held which were addressed by an expert in this subject. The cause of much of the weakness in the teaching of this important subject in the past was that the instructors themselves did not know how to present the matter before the pupils. Mere copying of a form will never make good writers, but when instructors are taught how to teach then can we expect good results. It is a pleasure to report that the teachers have profited by such instruction and that the results compare favorably with those of other school systems.

The teaching force is hard working and willing to carry out any suggestions offered but we cannot expect any continuity of work as long as there are so many changes in the corps from year to year. In February 1913 there is but one grade teacher who was in service in February 1912. No business could make advance if its working force were to be constantly changing and neither can one expect results of which one can be proud in school work. The school year is so short in this town that only by having teachers thoroughly acquainted with local conditions can we fit pupils for the high school in the time given.

The school year in the majority of the towns of the state consists of thirty-eight weeks. In Upton it is thirty-six. Generally throughout the state full time is given to both the first and second grades. In Upton but half time is given. For a comparison, if Upton has two weeks less time in each year then there are sixteen weeks less preparation for the high school in the grammar course. From this must also be deducted another whole year because of the half time in the first two grades. The result is that we are trying to fit pupils for secondary school work in six and a half years. It is a question whether eight years' work can be done in six and a half.

With the present arrangement any teacher in the grades can leave Upton and take the same salary per week in almost any town in the state and still have a yearly increase in salary. The expense of adding two weeks to the year would not be over one hundred and sixty dollars. Should each teacher now in service be re-elected for the longer year at an increase in salary of fifty cents per week the total cost would be less than three hundred and fifteen dollars. It would probably be much less for it is natural to expect that in any case some of those at present teaching in town will go elsewhere for the coming year. I would recommend this matter to the very careful consideration of the town.

In my argument above I have not meant to imply that the teachers of the town are not competent. I have found them willing, faithful and loyal in all ways. Without their cordial assistance any advance that may have been made in the past months would have been impossible.

To you, members of the committee, I wish to extend my hearty appreciation for the many courtesies extended to me and for the valuable assistance you have afforded me in the work of supervision of the Upton schools.

Respectfully submitted,

T. H. DeCOUDRES.

REPORT OF PRINCIPAL OF HIGH SCHOOL.

TO MR. T. H. DE COUDRES, SUPERINTENDENT OF SCHOOLS :—

There is an increasing demand throughout the country that the High Schools be made more efficient in their appointed task of developing good citizens. It is pointed out that the High Schools, supported by the public, ought to meet the needs of the large majority of their pupils who are to get no formal education beyond that of the High School, instead of planning their courses for the few who are to go to college. While it is true that a great deal of the criticism comes from people who are not thoroughly acquainted with school affairs, we must admit that there is truth in the assumption, implied in their statements, that preparation for college, as that term has been understood, is not at the same time an adequate equipment for those who are to take their places in the world upon their graduation from High School.

What is the Upton High School doing, and what more can it do, to make its pupils fit to take up the duties of citizenship? In answer to these pertinent questions, I will state briefly what we are undertaking to do. We require four years of study in English of every pupil who is graduated and allow each to choose at least three other subjects each year from the following: Latin (4 years), French (3 years), German (1 year), History (3 years), Mathematics (4 years), Science (4 years), and Commercial subjects (3 years). That is, we are offering the minimum requirement for college, with the addition of three years of Commercial work. We are doing this because the law of the Commonwealth requires that every High School shall prepare for college. And the only attempt we have yet made to meet the general needs of the community is along the business line. We cannot attempt to do more than this with our present organization, for with the subjects named above we have twenty-three classes to be divided among three teachers, thereby giving to each one more than any teacher can do well,—the Commercial classes suffering most. We have this year combined the third and fourth year classes in Bookkeeping, and I would recommend omitting the German next year, since less than two years of that study is no longer accepted by the colleges. The total number of classes will then be reduced to twenty-one, or seven for each teacher. Further reduction seemsto be impossible, if we are to maintain the minimum requirements of college preparation.

We ought to be doing something more than we are doing in the lines of practical arts and vocational guidance. It should be possible for pupils in the High School to discover their individual abilities and capabilities, and also to learn something about many occupations and professions, so that they may be able at the proper time to make a wise choice of vocation. If we are to attempt to give our pupils anything worth while in these directions, the teacher who undertakes it must have less of other work, and the only way that can be brought about is by employing another assistant teacher, and dividing the work among the four. This arrangement would result in more effective teaching in every subject. Perhaps we cannot hope to accomplish this object at once, but we should strive for it if we would have our school keep pace with the general educational advancement.

The salary now offered the assistant teachers for the first year is $400, and the maximum is $450. A comparison of towns in circumstances similar to those of Upton is interesting. In the fifteen towns, including Upton, whose populations vary less than 20 per cent from that of Upton, whose valuations vary less than 25 per cent from that of Upton, and whose average High School enrollment is 62, the average salary of the assistants is $491, and only two besides Upton pay so little as $400. The highest is $700. We cannot continue to offer only $400 for the first year, with a prospect of only $450 thereafter, with any hope of securing and retaining efficient teachers, when other towns are paying from $500 to $700.

Last June seventeen pupils of the eighth grade were given promotion cards. One of that number moved from town during the summer, and the remaining sixteen entered the High School, together with six others from out of town. The prospects are that there will be much larger entering classes in the next two years, for the eighth and seventh grades each number about thirty pupils. The total enrollment and present membership of the school is shown by classes in the following table:—

Boys enrolled	6	7	8	7	28
Girls enrolled	7	7	12	15	41
	—	—	—	—	—
Total enrolled	13	14	20	22	69
Left school	0	1	2	4	7
Present number	13	13	18	18	62

The attendance during the first three months of the year averaged about 96 per cent, but since December sickness has reduced that average to about 94.5 per cent. There are, however, many cases of absence for other causes than sickness, some of which could be avoided if the parents as well as the pupils realized more fully the handicap that even one day lost places upon the pupil.

A class of two boys and nine girls was graduated in June. One of the boys has entered college, and two of the girls have gone to Normal schools. Many of the other members are earning money with which to pursue further study next year.

The two greatest improvements in our property during the year are the new walk in front of the building and the new electric pump in the basement, both of which are greatly appreciated. Improvements in our equipment consist of the addition of about $30 worth of laboratory apparatus, and new and modern text books in Botany and Algebra.

In closing I wish to thank you for your advice and encouragement, and the committee for their interest and support, and to express my appreciation of the earnestness of the assistants in their work.

Respectfully,

VERNON S. AMES.

REPORT OF DRAWING, MUSIC AND MANUAL TRAINING INSTRUCTOR.

MR. T. H. DECODRES, SUPERINTENDENT OF SCHOOLS.

Dear Sir:—As this is my first report of the work under my supervision to be submitted to you, I wish to call your attention to the fact that the present method of carrying on the instruction in drawing and manual training has been in operation but little more than a year. In my last year's report I entered into considerable detail in regard to it, so that at the present time I shall confine myself largely to what has been accomplished by means of this change.

In the first place it has enabled me to supervise the work, hitherto impossible, and reduce it to some system. Secondly, it is more comprehensive and less confusing for the teachers, many of whom have had very little or no instruction in manual work. Consequently some time must be spent by them in gaining a knowledge of the required processes before they can confidently impart instruction to others. My visits to each grade are limited to two each month by reason of the music lessons which occupy the alternate weeks, so that much of the instruction has been given to the teachers after school hours.

The projects selected have not always been the same in parallel grades, but have generally been those that for some reason have been desired at the time and therefore furnished subjects of special interest to the pupils.

The teachers have everywhere been earnest and energetic in their efforts to secure the best work of which their pupils were capable, and have given extra time to the slower ones. There are always a few children in every school who are able with a little guidance to do good, neat work, but in this subject, as in any other in the curriculum, the majority need careful, painstaking instruction, or habits of carelessness and indifference will be formed that may seriously affect their progress in after life.

An exhibition held in each room just before the schools closed in June, emphasized the fact that a few things well made and thoroughly understood by each child were of greater value to him than a variety of objects poorly constructed. The articles displayed in the primary grades consisted largely of dolls' furnishings. Those of the higher grades were woven baskets, booklets, boxes, and a variety of pads for various purposes, such as spelling, writing, etc. The materials used in their construction were plasticine, yarns, raffia, reed, paper, cardboard and cloth. The processes included planning, measuring, modeling, winding, weaving, braiding, drawing, cutting, sewing, stenciling and embroidering.

In the drawings required for the constructed objects below the seventh grade, the pencil and ruler only have been used. When circles were required, circle markers have been made by the pupils. But as work with this device is often inaccurate I consider it will be much better to furnish compasses for the fifth and sixth grade pupils. The boys in the seventh and eighth grades need to be provided with inexpensive drawing kits. By their use more than half the time might be saved that is now required in trying to make accurate drawings for the manual training room.

The music in the schools continues to improve. The children are becoming better sight readers, and that is what the teaching of public school music means. A child may enjoy the singing of songs by imitation for a short time, but by this means he gains no knowledge or power to interpret the printed symbols, and very soon becomes indifferent to the whole subject. It has been proved that musical notation is most readily learned in the first five years of school, and therefore must not be left for the years in which it is drudgery. That it is not being so left is very evident at the present time in our schools. Children who are not endowed with great natural ability often turn out to be better musicians than those more favored in the beginning, if they are placed in the hands of teachers who will look after their individual growth in this as in other subjects.

The music charts which were added to our equipment last year are proving very satisfactory as an aid to the beginners in reading, and I have also placed charts of my own making in each of the first five grades for interval and staff drills. When we can supply the needed Harmonic Readers to the grammar schools and Grades V. and VI. at the Knowlton building our equipment will be complete.

The High school has maintained its usual standard of good work throughout the year, and through the interest and support of the principal we have been able to carry out some technical work for the boys who are unable to sing.

While there is yet much to be desired there is very much to be commended, and the year has been one of steady gain in all grades of the work.

Realizing that what has been accomplished has been largely due to the active co-operation of the teachers and superintendent, I herewith acknowledge my indebtedness to them.

Respectfully submitted,

REPORT OF MANUAL TRAINING INSTRUCTOR.

MR. T. H. DeCOUDRES, SUPERINTENDENT OF SCHOOLS.

Dear Sir:—The Manual Training department in Upton is conducted much the same as last year.

The boys of the seventh grade, or the entering class, are making simple objects. They first learn to master the saw and plane, then the spoke shave and so on. Each new object made requires the use of some new tool, or some new exercise involving the use of the same tool. All the objects made have some peculiar use. Nothing is made without this end in view, as boys are more careful if they know their product has a market value.

The boys of the eighth grade, or advanced class, are making much more difficult things, such as bootblackening stands, costumers and taborets. These objects require the use of dowel, mortise and tenon and half lap joints. The boys find that if two pieces are supposed to be the same, they must be made so. It does not do to have one an eighth of an inch longer or shorter than the other. Furniture work requires an accurate and skillful use of tools and an alert mind.

The boys of both classes are interested in their work, and nearly all do their best. Some, in this work, as in the regular routine work, are inclined to be careless. Each class has an hour each week at bench work. The mechanical drawing Miss Randall has carried on during the regular drawing period. This allows the boys the full manual training period for bench work.

The manual training room has had some extra coils of radiator installed during the past year and is now warm enough. The light is not as good as we could wish for. On rainy days it is hard for some of the boys to see the lines they are planing to. We should have a good sky-light, so that the light could be more evenly distributed.

We have a fine equipment and very good benches and I feel that the outlook for the coming year is encouraging.

Respectfully submitted,

DANA A. STANLEY,
Manual Training Instructor.
