REPORT OF SUPERINTENDENT OF SCHOOLS.

GENTLEMEN OF THE SCHOOL COMMITTEE:—

I hereby submit my second annual report as Superintendent of the public schools of Upton. It is the twenty-seventh report in the series since the formation of the Grafton and Upton Superintendency Union. The past year has been a period of maximum variation. At the present writing a commendable report on the progress and success of all the schools in the town is justifiable. Conditions formerly existing, which were responsible for some of the chaos of the past year, have been completely changed. I believe that the town is to be congratulated on the efficiency of the schools as now in operation. Not claiming perfection, a wholesome interest on the part of the teachers and the pupils in taking advantage of the opportunities that present themselves, is apparent.

The aim of elementary education is a much debated question. When a man of the prominence of the former Commissioner of Education, Dr. Snedden, states that when it comes to the aim of elementary education, educators must hold up their hands as evidence that the purpose for which the elementary school is conducted, admits of many interpretations. My ideal or aim for elementary education is to provide an opportunity for every child in the public schools of making himself a responsible citizen and a credit to the community. My aim also involves, beside the power to grasp the opportunity, a desire to do so. In individual conferences I have tried to impress upon those who have a careless attitude toward the school the value of the opportunities presented in school. There will always be those who lack ambition, and with those it will be necessary to do the best we can, but may no one be able to say that the opportunity for improvement has been lacking. I submit at the beginning of the school report a series of charts prepared by the Federal Education Bureau.

showing the money value of an education. These charts eloquently proclaim the advantage to be gained by attendance upon school.

CURRICULUM.

It is my purpose during the year to determine as carefully as possible how closely we approximate the standard accomplishment in the various subjects in the school. Investigation has already been conducted by the Ayres scale in the subject of spelling. The first test given shows the grades in Upton ranging from six to thirty per cent below the standard for those grades. The second test showed an improvement in all but one room. The continuation of the tests through the year will, I believe, show a general improvement throughout all the schools.

The Courtis arithmetic test should produce the same results in the subject of arithmetic. Cities where the tests have been used show improvement both in accuracy and in speed in the fundamental processes of from ten to twenty per cent. Although it is too early to report on the success of these tests in the Upton schools it will be safe to expect a fair improvement in the work of this important subject.

Courtis tests, of course, do not make mathematicians, neither do the Ayres tests make champion spellers, but they do help teachers find the weak spots with the result that they can, if they are willing to do the work, strengthen these weak points and send their children up to the next grade more uniformly developed in arithmetical and spelling ability. According to Dr. Daniel Starch of the University of Wisconsin, "It is unnecessary to point out the scientific and practical value of such investigations for all who are connected with the schools—administrators, supervisors, teachers, pupils and students of educational problems. These tests will furnish tools for evaluating quantitatively the results of methods and factors in teaching and learning, and for examining various aspects of efficiency of instruction and administration of school systems."

A committee of teachers appointed by the superintendent has been testing out a half dozen different language and grammar books for the seventh and eighth grades. An informal report from them indicates what book is to be used as a text book and these grades will be equipped with the same at the opening of the winter term. Emphasis is placed also upon the correct use of oral and written English. Penmanship should be given more attention and as a means of encouraging teachers to prepare themselves for the better teaching of this subject I should like to recommend an increase of fifty cents per week for any teacher who will secure a Palmer certificate in writing. A recent law makes teaching the duties of citizenship compulsory. This course is already in effect in the High school and to a certain extent in connection with the history work of the seventh and eighth grades. A definite program will be submitted by the state officials which will be a basis for the work in this subject.

SCHOOL HYGIENE.

National physique has become the watchword of the hour. The teaching of hygiene in schools has been emphasized more since the opening of war than ever before in the history of education. An appalling amount of physical unfitness, uncovered by the examination of the exemption boards, brings home the importance of early physical training. During the past three months this work has been emphasized with the teachers. A system in use in Newark, N. J., has been used as a basis on which to develop the work here. One of the features of this work is the attention given to faults in posture. A special exercise is suggested for the correction of many of the more common forms of incorrect position.

Special attention has been given to care of the teeth. I made a personal investigation of all the children in town and found by actual count that of 222 pupils 39 only used a tooth-brush regularly. Since that time there has been a very decided improvement in this particular so that the majority is now in favor of those who do use a toothbrush and not in favor of those who do not. Parents should realize the importance of the teeth in the healthy development of their children. It is so obvious that it needs no arguments to substantiate the truth of this statement. They should also know that the first molars are permanent teeth and should be looked after very carefully. It is a common experience among the dental profession to discover the so-called six-year molars too far gone to save. This is due, I believe, to a certain extent to the fact that these six-year molars are generally considered as first teeth.

During the coming term arrangements are being completed for a health exhibit under the direction of the state board of health. These exhibits have been held in several towns in the county and the instructions given to both pupils and parents are well worth what little interference they cause to the regular work of the school. Public school officials could do worse in view of the above-mentioned uncertain aim of elementary education to adopt as an aim for school work in the early years the hygienic development of the child. Too often tuberculosis steals the child or spinal curvature deforms him while we are wrangling over the rival methods of teaching grammar, arithmetic or writing, and only those who have had experience know the tragedy of this statement.

Medical inspection, which now specifies not only testing of the ears and eyes, inspection of the teeth and a superficial examination for skin diseases and throat troubles, should include the prescription of an adequate diet where children are conspicuously under-nourished. If the state may dictate a special course in the training of citizenship it certainly should have the power to dictate also that those who are being taught the duties of citizenship should grow up to be physically able to assume such duties. A more thorough examination of the throats of children is advisable, for recent investigation has shown that apparently healthy children are sometimes distributors of virulent diphtheria germs. In many cases an epidemic of these diseases has been traced to an apparently healthy child in the school room.

As a further aid to physical development all the various schools should be equipped with up-to-date playground apparatus. I should like to suggest a special appropriation to cover the purchase of giant strides and swings for all the schools.

JUNIOR RED CROSS.

The national crisis has thrown upon the schools, among other things, the Junior Red Cross work. This has been effectively carried out in the town of Upton by organization for all the separate school buildings. Money has been raised in various ways so that each pupil in school has, or will within a few weeks, contribute the sum of twenty-five cents, which entitles the contributor to a badge and membership in the Junior Red Cross organization. The Federal and State educational authorities have impressed upon us the necessity of allowing no interference with the regular work of the school. We have endeavored to make the time spent in Red Cross work a sacrifice on the part of the children, believing that in this way the duties of citizenship and the meaning of Red Cross work are the better taught. Representatives of the town met in Worcester on the eighth of December, at a meeting which was held under the direction of the American Red Cross, for the purpose of organizing the various units in the town.

REORGANIZATION OF THE PRIMARY GRADES.

Recently a change in the organization of grades one and two has been made. For the past seven or eight years grades one and two have been having a half session daily. I am informed that this was originally done to save money, as it enabled one teacher to handle both grades. A questionnaire was sent out to the parents of the children in the first and second grades to ascertain their attitude in regard to double session daily for both grades, and the number reporting in favor, although not unanimous, was nearly enough so to warrant the immediate change. This has been done with no additional expense to the town outside the cost of some seat work devised to profitably occupy the children of one grade while the other grade is reciting. The entering age of six years (which age I may state for the benefit of parents is to be construed as six years of age by January first following the opening of school) brings us children who, in my opinion, will not suffer physically from double session daily. Results already seem to indicate the wisdom of the change and an increase in the amount of work done by these grades.

The accompanying chart will show how the money spent on the schools during the past year has been distributed. It will be necessary to further increase the appropriation for teachers for the ensuing year in order to maintain the high standard which we have enjoyed, at least since the opening of school in September. We have been indeed fortunate to keep all of the teachers who began with us at the opening of this school year. Other places are experiencing much difficulty in keeping teachers while there have been such attractive propositions inviting the teachers into other fields. It is inevitable that teachers should become restless in their vocation if they realize that those who have grown up with them are receiving greater remuneration in other fields, and this is particularly shown when an opportunity to change is offered. I should recommend an increase of about ten per cent in the general appropriation for teachers.

PROMOTION.

The question of promotion both within the year and particularly in June, is of special interest. The custom of promoting regardless of rank at the completion of a second year in the same grade is followed in Upton. Rank entitling children to advancement is printed in the report cards. Opportunity will be given those who fail to make up the subjects in which they failed, under direction of a competent tutor. For those whose promotion is recommended during the year a special investigation will be conducted by the superintendent to determine the intelligence quotient of the pupil in question. This determination is made by the Stanford revision of the Binet-Simion tests. The use of these tests enables an experienced investigator to locate any child exactly in the intelligence scale.

Your attention is respectfully called to the reports of the Principal of the High school and the supervisors of music and drawing and manual training. Your attention is also called to the change in the school calendar for the ensuing year. The following is a summary of recommendations:

1. More thorough medical inspection.
2. Appropriation for play ground apparatus.
3. A ten per cent increase in the appropriation for teachers' salaries.
4. Independent increase of fifty cents for teachers securing Palmer certificate in writing.
5. Special attention to school hygiene.

In conclusion may I thank you for your cordial support and encouragement during the past year.

Respectfully submitted,

CHESTER D. STILES,
Superintendent of Schools.

REPORT OF PRINCIPAL OF HIGH SCHOOL.

West Upton, Mass.

Mr. CHESTER D. STILES, SUPERINTENDENT OF SCHOOLS:

Dear Sir:—

I have the honor to submit to you my second annual report as principal of the Upton High School.

During the past year a slight change has been made in the course of study. Algebra has been taken from the Sophomore course of study and placed in the Freshman course of study. General Science has been taken from the Freshman course of study and placed in the Sophomore course of study. These changes will, in this and following years, make it possible for pupils to begin and complete their courses in Science and Mathematics without a year's intervention. The course in American Government has been made a full year subject instead of a half year subject. Rhetoricals learned and delivered twice each year before the school are required of all pupils. In the study of English, in addition to the general practice of essay writing, themes selected and fully developed, consisting of twelve hundred words or over, are required of all Juniors and Seniors at the end of the first half year.

An increased interest in athletic sports has been manifested by the school during the past year. Through the thoughtfulness and generosity of the Wm. Knowlton & Sons Base Ball Organization we were able to fully equip our base ball team and continue through a successful season. We also participated in an outdoor triangular track meet.

The members of the school gave a play during the winter term from which a sum sufficiently adequate to support a base ball team and to meet other expenditures was realized.

There are each year one or more pupils who leave school because they fail to maintain a standing in their work sufficient to warrant their continuance in the school. The majori-

Many of these cases I believe could be avoided by a co-operation of the parent with the teacher. If a pupil enters the high school properly prepared, is attentive during the recitation periods and studious during the brief time left him to study while in school, and fails to obtain a passing grade in his subjects it is obvious that co-operation of parent and teacher is lacking. Home study is essential. I believe it a right and duty of parents when John or Mary brings home a report card showing low grades in his or her subjects to interview the teacher and discuss the cause, and means by which he or she may bring those subjects up to a more satisfactory mark.

I wish to thank you, Superintendent, for your helpful suggestions, and for the sincere co-operation which you and the members of the school board have given us in the performance of our work, and through you I would like to express our appreciation to the citizens and people of the town who have helped us to make the past school year a successful one.

I am, with respect,

A. RUSSELL C. COLE,
Principal.

REPORT OF SUPERVISOR OF DRAWING AND MUSIC.

MR. C. D. STILES, SUPERINTENDENT OF SCHOOLS:

DEAR SIR:—

The work in both departments under my supervision has made the usual progress in all the schools.

At the beginning of the fall term new outlines in drawing were prepared for the more definite arrangement of the various problems that had been introduced during the year. While the drawing course as a whole has not materially changed, certain phases of the work have been emphasized in problems that are more intimately related to the various things pertaining to child life, at school, at home and in the community. For example, under color study, we have made practical applications of color theories and harmonies in the proper arrangement of flowers in the schoolroom, and also in studying matters of dress and home furnishings.

In representative and constructive drawing the chief tool of expression has been the pencil. In the lower grades colored crayons have been used quite extensively in the story telling. The work of building up a vocabulary of graphic symbols mentioned in my last report has been continued, the little people learning a number of them yearly—symbols of animals, the human figure, constructed objects, etc. In the succeeding years fewer are required as the old symbols are added to and perfected and new ideas are formed in proportion. The study of the third dimension is left for the seventh and eighth years.

Very little nature work has been taught and this largely in outline to gain material for use in design. The principles of design relate to all forms of lettering. Considerable time has been given to this last exercise in all the grades with results that are gratifying to both teachers and pupils.

In the constructed articles the same processes have been continued in the making of useful things that have been described in previous reports, with the exception of some work by the boys of Grades V. and VI. This was practice in the use of the coping-saw in making toys and other objects from thin wood. Some examples of this work were on exhibition with other constructed articles at the Upton Fair in September.

At the beginning of the year the music was made a subject of especial consideration in all the grades. Careful comparisons were made with one course for the first six grades and that published by the State Board of Education, with results that showed our aims, purposes and methods to be identical with those of the committee for the State Board. In order to provide each teacher with a copy of the state outlines, which were difficult to obtain in sufficient numbers, hektographed copies were made and distributed.

In Grade VII. music books of the Progressive Series were selected to supplant those of the Harmonic Course which were discarded as unfit for further use. During the fall term books of the same series were also supplied Grades V. and VI. As this is the lowest book of the series that can be used without having first prepared a foundation for sight singing by methods wholly different from those of the Harmonic course, I decided, after much consideration, to begin initiative work in the first and second grades, and obtained permission to have the Teachers' Manuals placed in those grades. Though in use but a short time, thus far the "song method" is making satisfactory progress, and will, I am confident, prove entirely successful if the work of the first four years is carefully accomplished as outlined.

In introducing this change of methods it will necessitate the purchase of more books as soon as the second year pupils are ready for them. The combining of the first and second grades has proved helpful in the singing lessons, as the songs are learned by both grades at the same time, thereby giving us a little more time for the lessons which is so necessary at the start.

I wish, through the medium of this report, to thank you for so carefully considering all my requirements, and also the teachers for the work accomplished.

Respectfully submitted,

FLORA M. RANDALL.

REPORT OF SUPERVISOR OF MANUAL TRAINING.

West Medway, Mass., January 10, 1918.

MR. CHESTER D. STILES, SUPERINTENDENT OF SCHOOLS:

Dear Sir:—I herewith present my report concerning Manual Training as carried on in the public schools of Upton.

Much fine work has been accomplished during the past year, due largely to the ability of the boys rather than to my instruction. All boys in the advanced class have constructed large pieces, among them being bookcases, pedestals, stools, a desk, and centre table. The boys have shown unusual interest in the work and have put their best work into their individual pieces. These things were on exhibition at the town fair in September, and I am sure showed the practicability of the work.

The boys in the seventh grade, or beginners, are farther advanced at this time of year than any previous class. This is due to their ability to concentrate—fewer pieces being spoiled.

Two pieces of equipment have been added during the past year, an electric glue pot, purchased by the boys, and a grinder, purchased with money taken in prizes at the fair.

I feel that the outlook for the coming year is encouraging. I wish, however, the work might be extended into the high school. As it is now, as soon as a boy is able to accomplish good work, he has to drop the subject. I would not place the burden on the Home Literary Club as they have been and are doing more than their part as it is. I do think, however, that the town should see that this course is added to the high school curriculum.

I wish to thank those who have carried out the drawing connected with our work.

Respectfully submitted,

D. A. STANLEY.
